

Role: Lead Mobile Developer

Do you love mobile development and want to help solve the #1 health issue in sports?

We're looking for a mobile developer to join our team at HeadCheck Health. Based in Vancouver, we're a Canadian company that makes it easier to identify and manage concussions at all levels of sport. Our product has both web-based and mobile-based components, the latter of which you'll be leading.

In your role, you'll be our first hire as we look to bring our mobile development in-house. You will work directly with our in-house Lead Developer who handles web development and oversees our contracted mobile developers. Over time, we'll be adding other junior mobile developers who you'll be involved in hiring and leading along with the Lead Developer. Our entire team works collaboratively, so from time-to-time, you'll also engage with our other employees, such as our Customer Success team who relay feedback from our customers, or the founders who oversee product development.

Key Responsibilities:

- Code! Execute the development of new features and bug fixes for our mobile apps (both iOS & Android) from idea to production (including QA and app store submissions)
- Engage with our contracted developers and/or junior mobile developers we hire to ensure mobile development milestones are completed
- Track mobile development activity and productivity
- Efficiently communicate progress to the team
- Other roles & responsibilities as required by the business

Skills, Passions, and Competencies:

- Degree in Computer Science or equivalent
- 3+ years of Swift/Java coding experience
- Results-driven attitude
- Passion for health and/or sports
- Ability to multi-task, work independently, and be self-motivated

- Ability to work as part of a team
- Strong organizational skills and ability to stick to a schedule
- No fear of asking for clarification to completely understand requirements
- Detail oriented
- Demonstrated ability to plan, schedule, organize and prioritize work

Apply before 11:59pm PST on January 21st, 2018

Please email us your resume at admin@headcheckhealth.com and a note outlining a list of projects you've completed, links to any projects/portfolios, personal passions/pursuits, and a note explaining why you'd be a great fit!