

Role: Lead Mobile Developer

Do you love mobile development and want to help solve the #1 health issue in sports?

We're looking for a rockstar mobile developer to join our team at HeadCheck Health. Based in Vancouver, we're a Canadian company that makes it easier to identify and manage concussions at all levels of sport. Our product has both web-based and mobile-based components, the latter of which you'll be leading.

In your role you'll lead our in-house mobile development, work directly with our in-house web developer and oversee our contracted mobile developers. Over time you'll also help us scout and hire junior mobile devs. Our entire team works collaboratively, so from time-to-time you'll also engage with our other employees, such as our Customer Success and Sales teams who relay feedback from our customers, or the Company's founders who oversee product development.

Key Responsibilities:

- Code! Execute the development of new features and bug fixes for our mobile apps (both iOS & Android) from idea to production (including QA and app store submissions)
- Engage & collaborate with our contracted developers and/or junior mobile developers to ensure mobile development milestones are completed
- Set goals and track our mobile development activity/productivity
- Efficiently communicate progress to the team
- Other roles & responsibilities as required by the business

Skills, Passions, and Competencies:

- Degree in Computer Science or equivalent
- 3+ years of Swift/Java coding experience
- Results-driven attitude
- Passion for health and/or sports
- Ability to multitask, work independently, and be self-motivated
- Ability to work as part of a team
- Strong organizational skills and ability to stick to a schedule
- No fear of asking for clarification to completely understand requirements
- Detail-oriented
- Demonstrated ability to plan, schedule, organize and prioritize work

Apply before 11:59pm PST on April 15th, 2019

Please email us your resume at admin@headcheckhealth.com and a note outlining a list of projects you've completed, links to any projects/portfolios, personal passions/pursuits, and a note explaining why you'd be a great fit!